

START FIRING NEAR MUKDEN

Japanese Front Faces the Russian Outposts
On the Southeast.

GENERAL ENGAGEMENT IMMINENT

Though It Is Not Believed That Kuropatkin Will Try
To Hold the City Unless Fortune
Is Very Favorable.

[Special by Scripps-McLain.]

St. Petersburg, Sept. 17.—(Special.)—It is reported here that outposts firing has begun south of Mukden; also in the direction of the Liao river, indicating that a general engagement is imminent, although towards the east the movements of Kuropatkin are still veiled. The general staff does not believe Kuropatkin intends to hold Mukden against the Japanese unless the course of battle is unexpectedly favorable.

Capture Five Hundred

Chefoo, Sept. 17.—(Special.)—A Japanese who arrived today from Dalney reports a terrific bombardment of Port Arthur by the Japanese on Sept. 15 and 16. He also reports that five hundred Russian cavalry men, who attempted to drive the Japanese from Pail Chwang, were captured. Pail Chwang is the strategic position just outside of Port Arthur, which Japanese have held for some time.

Kuropatkin Moves

Tokio, Sept. 17.—(Special.)—The Japanese front is now confronting the Russian outpost southeast of Mukden. Kuropatkin, it is reported here, has moved his headquarters to Harbin.

A Lost Attache

Tokio, Sept. 17.—(Special.)—The French ambassador has requested the Japanese advance posts to ask the Russians at Port Arthur if they have had any news of Attache Decuerville, who was reported to have left Port Arthur about the time of the Russian sortie of August tenth and who has not been heard from since.

No Warship in Sight

San Francisco, Sept. 17.—(Special.)—The "Lena" proceeded to the navy yard this morning and will be dismantled today. On Monday the overhauling will begin. No other Russian war craft has been sighted.

Port Arthur Under Strain.

The Japanese are now expected to redouble their efforts before Port Arthur, whence the news received is not encouraging. In spite of the success which has hitherto attended the defense, the Russian lines are being drawn closer, the garrison is undergoing severe privations, and its resisting power is weakening under the strain.

A final sortie of the Russian squadron at Port Arthur may be expected at any time. When the command of the squadron was turned over to Rear Admiral Wren he received strict instructions that if the fortress falls not one of the Russian ships must fall into the hands of the Japanese.

Garrison Short of Supplies.

Shanghai, Sept. 17.—The North China Daily News publishes a private letter from a Chinese interpreter employed from 1897 until the end of August last in the commissariat department at Port Arthur. The writer says:

"There are now 24,000 sick and wounded men at Port Arthur. Of ammunition of all kinds there are small stocks and there are only five weeks' full rations remaining."

The interpreter says the garrison of Port Arthur, the officers excepted, is anxious to surrender.

Oyama Moves Forward.

London, Sept. 17.—Field Marshal Oyama's advance against Gen. Kuropatkin's army at Mukden has commenced. A flanking movement of supreme importance is in progress. News of the course of the advance is awaited.

MAN SWEEPED OVER THE HORSE SHOE

[Special by Scripps-McLain.]
Buffalo, Sept. 17.—James Byron, aged 36, a driver on one of the reservation wagons at Niagara Falls, this morning jumped in the rapids at Terrapin Point and was swept over the Horse Shoe falls.

FOUR SUSPECTS HELD IN IOWA

[Special by Scripps-McLain.]
Des Moines, Sept. 17.—Four suspects of the Rock Island hold-up are held here. It is believed they are ordinary hoboes, but detectives say they have grounds for the arrest. Two prisoners are held at Burlington. A posse is now following on a fresh trail.

The final trial of the protected cruiser Denver will be made in Hampton roads Sept. 26.

other and "greater" than that of Liao Yang may be expected at any time.

Correspondents at St. Petersburg declare that the Russian general staff is informed of the apparent concentration of the Japanese advance armies against the flanks of Kuropatkin's army, preparatory to an attack upon Mukden.

The general staff refused to deny or confirm the reports. Kuropatkin two days ago reported the massing of great bodies of Japanese artillery north of the Yental railroad line. That is the most definite information in the hands of the Russian war office.

Russia Admits Amazement.

While they do not deny that the advance has commenced, officers of the general staff express the most profound amazement that Oyama has been able in so brief a time to organize his army for a serious advance northward.

Despite the indefinite nature of the news on which they base their theory, English military experts, in their reviews of the war, are almost unanimous in declaring that the actual advance has commenced and that events are rushing rapidly toward another terrible battle.

Dispatches from Mukden say that a party of wounded men from General Mischenko's Cossack division have been brought to the city, and that it was not learned whether they were wounded in an outpost engagement or in the first clash in the Japanese advance on Mukden.

Retreat Before Japanese.

Military opinion here inclines to the belief that Mischenko has been in conflict with the advance guard of Oyama's army. The Cossack troops which Mischenko commands formed part of the rear guard of Kuropatkin's army which is supposed to have been stationed south of the Hun river. It is believed here that this force has already retreated before the Japanese advance.

Part of Lost Army.

Some of the papers comment on the fact that nothing whatever has been heard of the two divisions of Oyama's army which were dispatched north on a secret mission nearly two months ago. This force has completely disappeared from sight. It is the belief here that these two divisions are well in the rear of Kuropatkin's army at Mukden, if they are not already at the pass ready to make a dash on the lines of communication at the proper moment.

The news from Port Arthur is fully equal in interest to that from the front. Every scrap of information from the beleaguered fortress points to the fact that the Japanese are on the eve of making the most desperate effort of the siege to reduce the citadel.

Fleet Ready for Dash.

It is stated that the remaining vessels of the Russian fleet are ready for another dash to the open sea, and that every preparation has been made to destroy the fortress with mines should the weakened garrison be overcome.

Should the Russian fleet make the expected dash seaward the world, it is believed, will witness one of the most spectacular incidents of any war in history. It is known that Admiral Shiloff left orders to destroy the ships if it is impossible to save them. This it is believed, will be done at any cost.

BISMARCK IS IN AGONY OF DEATH

[Special by Scripps-McLain.]
Berlin, Sept. 17.—Physicians of Prince Herbert Bismarck at midnight declared that the death agony had begun. The latest reports state that the prince is barely alive.

PRISON IS FIRED AT MICHIGAN CITY

[Special by Scripps-McLain.]
La Porte, Ind., Sept. 17.—Fire early this morning destroyed five factory buildings of the state prison at Michigan City. It is rumored that convicts fired the buildings. Loss, $100,000.

The remains of Seaman Schrader, who was recently drowned from the United States ship Hartford and who was buried at Annapolis, will be disinterred and sent to his home in St. Louis.

(Bryan will make a number of speeches during the campaign.—News Item.)
The sum and substance of the Nebraskaan's efforts no doubt will be: "I am happy to say, fellow-citizens that I take great delight in addressing you, for, you may observe, this is not my funeral!"

JEFFRIS TEARS MASK FROM LA FOLLETTISM

In a Masterly Effort Before Great Audience at the Pabst Theater.
Milwaukee...Reviews Every Measure Championed by a Corrupt and Shameless Administration.

Before an immense audience at the Pabst theatre, Milwaukee, last evening, Attorney M. G. Jeffris of Jamesville tore the mask from La Folletteism, meeting glittering sophistries with logic absolute and revealing to the great audience that heard him the utter falsity and selfishness of the present republican administration. Senator J. V. Quarles presided and Mr. Jeffris spoke two hours and a half, delayed at frequent intervals by the wild bursts of applause which greeted him. The address, in print, covers many pages, and will be issued as a supplement with the Gazette in the near future. When given in general circulation it is certain to create a profound impression on the mind of every thinking man, it matters not what faction of the party demands his allegiance.

Corruption Catch-Word.

The speaker first took up the statements regarding the state being overrun and controlled by the corporations which the governor has published recently over his own signature in Collier's. He took up the governor's statements regarding the wages and the cost of living, which he refuted by the declarations of President Roosevelt.

"President Roosevelt says this, and Gov. La Follette declares the opposite," he said. "La Follette is supporting Roosevelt—with a knife." The state convention at Madison last May was discussed in detail by the speaker, who disproved the assertions being made by Gov. La Follette regarding it. "The governor's organ says the men who differ from him are political cut-throats and assassins," he said. "Do they look like it?" turning to the men seated on the stage. "The so-called stalwarts of Wisconsin no longer recognize Robert M. La Follette as a republican or as a member of the party."

Railroad Animus Explained.

The governor's attitude toward the railroads was handled without gloves, and facts were disclosed which will prove a revelation to many citizens. The speaker explained the animus of the present fight, and told of the agreement made by Gov. La Follette in 1900 with the railroads, which agreement, he declared, was kept until the Burlington road declined to appoint E. W. Chynoweth its counsel in Wisconsin at the governor's request. In this connection the speaker referred to the action of the governor in attending the state fair, and endeavoring to turn it into a political hustling. The pretensions of the governor with regard to the tax commission were shown up, as were his claims to being the father of the ad valorem taxation measure. "The governor has torn his party apart," declared the speaker, amid great applause. "He has set class against class, and instead of appealing to honor and reason he has appealed to the baser passions of his fellow men."

Insurance commissioner, and state treasurer were all taken up. "And when he is confronted with these things," said the speaker, "the answer of the governor, as he himself said at Eau Claire, is the railroads must pay more taxes."

Known of Shortage Before Convention.

The speaker charged that the shortage in the treasurer's office existed before the convention at which Treasurer Kempf was renominated, and that the governor was cognizant of the state of affairs before the convention.

Mr. Jeffris stripped the mask from the proposed primary election law, which he showed to have been prepared on the governor's statement, that under its provisions they could not get a good man out of office in twenty years.

What Happened at Madison.

Speaking of the Madison convention he said: "Now, we had a convention at Madison last May, and I am not going to take your time to dwell on that to any great extent, but I want to tell you something about what took place. That convention was called and there were 1,065 delegates elected to that convention; and we found when we got to Madison that the so-called stalwarts had a clean, clear majority in that convention (great applause). The La Folletteites found the same thing, and what did they do? Why they sent out word: 'We will throw out enough of your votes by the state central committee to have a majority ourselves.' And they are called 'republicans.' That is not the brand of politics that we are used to in the state of Wisconsin, and we said 'No.' Why, ladies and gentlemen, when you have a governor in the state of Wisconsin going about the country libeling his own state, and slandering his own state, what are you going to do to him? Are you going to let him continue to be governor (cries of "No, No!")? No, I think not either I hold in my hand a copy of Collier's Weekly of a recent issue and want to read you one statement. It is an article by Gov. La Follette over his own signature to Collier's Weekly, and speaking of the state convention, he says: 'Contents were put up—that is, by the stalwarts—counties without any pretext of right and false claims were adhered to, with a persistency that showed deliberate intention to secure control at any cost.' The stalwarts put up contests, he says, in many counties showing a deliberate intention to control Now, that is written over the signature of R. M. La Follette.

Falseness Not Excusable.

"And I say that a man who will send out a thing of that kind deliberately—we can excuse a man if he is the impulse of speaking but what make a mistake, a misstatement, I repeat it after his attention is called to the error he is no longer excusable. And when a man who is familiar with political conditions in Wisconsin sits down and deliberately writes an article like that, if it is absolutely false in every detail, what are we going to say about him? Is there anything to criticize? Shall we do anything but condemn? Mind you over his written signature, he sent out that the stalwarts filed contests in counties to secure control. Now let me tell you what the fact is. La Follette, and his people, contested Ashland county, the second district in Dodge county, the first district in Grant county, the whole of Oconto county, and the first assembly district in Eau Claire county. These were contested by the La Folletteites and what did the stalwarts contest? The county of St. Croix. Who was it that instituted contests in order to control the convention? That man deliberately puts in print that the stalwarts did it. Why, gentlemen, they issued bogus tickets to the convention, themselves, and distributed them among their adherents, and charged it to the stalwarts. It is a favorite game of R. M. La Follette to do something himself that is wrong and charge it to the other side (applause).

Would Not Be Held Up.

"Gentlemen I stated there at Madison that I didn't care anything particular about politics, but I was a free and independent American citizen, and no man could rob me of my rights in that way without my consenting it. I did not want anything, but I would not stand there and be deliberately held up by the governor of the state of Wisconsin, or any other man that draws the breath of life; and there were over 550 men who said the same thing in that convention. And what did we do? The state central committee picked out a hall, it put a wire fence across part way, and then told us we had to go into a little narrow door, where only one man could get in at a time, and

PLANNING TO EMPLOY MORE MEN

Increasing Demands of Trade Are Well Sustained—Money Rates Lower—Good Tidings in Dun's Report.

[Special by Scripps-McLain.]

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 17.—Dun's weekly review of trade says: "The recently noted improved tone has been well sustained, more confidence being drawn from the steadily increasing demand and widening consumption. A heavier movement appears in farm products and general merchandise, while a larger output is being made in several manufacturing lines. In planning for future activity employers of large forces exhibit confidence, and while many car workers are idle, full resumption in steel and packing industries added thousands to the ranks of wage-earners."

Money Rates Are Lower.

"Money is cheaper than at this time last year, and an improved borrowing demand reflects a closer return to normal conditions among producers. Iron and steel interests are booking more satisfactory orders and many building improvements strengthen the market for lumber, hardware and other material. A satisfactory volume is recorded in both jobbing and retail branches. Thermal conditions were favorable to continued reduction of stocks throughout the interior. There was good buying of dry goods, house furnishings and footwear, dealings being reinforced by numerous country merchants from various sections. New business closed in staples for fall delivery made a favorable comparison with a year ago."

Markets for Breadstuffs.

"Markets for breadstuffs were again largely influenced by speculative features, resulting in higher prices for wheat and flour. Compared with the closings of last week wheat advanced 6 cents, but the coarse grains show little change, corn being only fractionally lower. Grain shipments, 4,191,731 bushels, are the largest this year, although falling short of a year ago, 9.4 per cent. Provisions disclose slight recessions in value, but live stock on improved buying became dearer, choice beefs advancing 25 cents and hogs 15 cents a hundred-weight.

Failures reported in the Chicago district number 35, against 23 last week and 24 a year ago."

Couldn't Trust People.

"They did not do that up there," they did not dare. Some La Follette men told me afterward they did not dare trust their own people to that extent, to allow them to vote on it. What did they do? Mr. Bryan came in and said: 'We have selected our temporary chairman; we have elected your temporary secretary; we have done everything for you. You have got nothing to do but follow up the program.' Of course he did not say that way, but we found he had thirty-two pages telling who would make the motions and how he votes should be on the motions. That is the kind of a convention we had of representative citizens of the state of Wisconsin and of business men. That is the kind of thing we were up against, as free and independent men in the exercise of our own judgment; and we said 'No.' He said he was ready to call the militia if necessary; but let me assure you it was never necessary and he knew it wasn't necessary to put those translators and football players along here, because it was announced in the opera house the night before that convention that we should go to that convention as gentlemen; that we would go down there insisting upon our right, but in every instance every individual man was to behave himself as a gentleman (a voice, "And they did").

Nominated the Republican Ticket.

"And they did it. And the kind of treatment they got has been detailed to you. We said: 'We will not permit it.' We found he had employed the physical force there and it meant a riot for us to assert our rights at that time. So we retired from the hall and went to the Pabst opera house and we put in nomination the only republican ticket that is before the people of the state of Wisconsin today (cries, "Right you are"). We elected four delegates at large to go to the national convention, and they went down there. And the national committee had a sitting, and it took up all of the evidence,

"Warehouse shipments now reach large proportions, and calls for urgent dispatch are frequent, stocks on hand being low. Mercantile collections have been satisfactorily prompt, although more failures are seen among small storekeepers, due mainly to strike troubles."

"Raw material for manufacturing purposes is more plentiful. Iron ore and lumber are in especial request, and the market for fuel shows less dullness. Wood-working shops are steady consumers of supplies, and furniture-makers are turning out more finished work. Receipts of hides, 3,640,564 pounds, the 40 per cent more than a year ago. Values are slightly easier."

Markets for Breadstuffs.

"Markets for breadstuffs were again largely influenced by speculative features, resulting in higher prices for wheat and flour. Compared with the closings of last week wheat advanced 6 cents, but the coarse grains show little change, corn being only fractionally lower. [Special by Scripps-McLain.]

La Fayette, Ind., Sept. 17.—In the annual "Tank Scrap" at Purdue, university last night, fifty students were hurt and five will probably not recover. Those thought to be fatally hurt are: Frank Haas, La Fayette, collarbone fractured and back thought to be broken, also injured internally; George Wright, Arm broken, kicked in the stomach; Fred McNell; Tony Jacobs; Earl McCoy; Carl Chandler, injured internally and badly bruised. The sophomores won the battle and marched the freshmen back to the city early this morning. The story of the encounter is told as follows: The sophomores appeared at the tank at midnight, followed a half hour later by five hundred freshmen. The freshmen, marshalled by juniors, attacked the sophomores and in the scrimmage many were injured. The sophomores painted their class numbers on the tank and were declared the winners. The injured were carried away in an ambulance and hauled to a chain and marched through the city.

EASTERN PAPERS ARE INTERESTED

IN THE WISCONSIN LA FOLLETTE REPUBLICAN FIGHT.

INTIMATE TALK ON POLITICS

Demeanor of Judges at Madison Hearing—Betting on the Outcome—A Bit of History.

(Special to The Gazette.)
Madison, Wis., Sept. 17.—Political Wisconsin is at fever heat. Even the sedate east has turned its attention to Wisconsin politics. The Brooklyn Eagle, one of the most conservative newspapers in the east, on the 13th of the present month printed a two column article on the regime of La Follette and the evils that have accrued from it. It was not a personally conducted article similar to those which have been sent out to various publications showing only the side of the great reformer but a description of facts as they really exist. Coming as it does through the columns of the Brooklyn Eagle it opens the eyes of the eastern republicans to the real facts of the La Follette-republican fight. It is being read with great interest in the east and correspondents for New York papers at both Madison and Milwaukee have been ordered to rush similar stories, now the truth is known.

The Supreme Court
The absence of Judge Siebecker from the supreme bench during the last two days of the hearing of the convention case has created considerable talk in both Madison and Milwaukee. It is said that Siebecker retired only when forced to by the telling arguments of Harry Butler, Mr. Olin's law partner, who clearly pointed out the law regarding courts where relatives of the interested parties sat in judgment. Siebecker is a brother-in-law of Governor La Follette. A democrat by right of thought he is said to have been somewhat with the doctrine of reform as preached by the "reformer" and his appearance at the first day of the hearing was considered by many, both La Follette supporters and others, as very unwise. He is now out of the question and the interest remains in what the other justices will decide on this momentous question. Judge Cassoday has shown wonderful interest throughout the long hearing. Judge Winslow has been long enough on the bench to have acquired a judicial bearing and his demeanor has been one of studied indifference. Judges Marshall and Dodge asked repeated questions, some of which were answered by the La Follette attorneys, damaged their cause. In the opinions of the court hangers-on. There has not been a hearing or a decision more eagerly sought for than the present one. Prominent men from all parts of the state heaved a sigh of relief when told that the court would take jurisdiction. The decision will not be received until September 27, a week from next Tuesday, but it may be anticipated.

General Gossip
While it may not have been the most politic plan to announce one's decision while the case was pending before the supreme court, Mr. Cook's announcement of his position as to republicanism in event of the decision of the supreme court being adverse to his ticket, has called forth a signed letter from a hundred and forty-seven men whose affiliation to the cause of La Folletteism has been undoubted and who assure Secretary Cordell that they will abide by the decision of the court. In fact it is pretty generally conceded that republicans, of whatever faith, will be guided by the decision of the court whichever way it may be. Differing from this is the sentiment that the governor has repeatedly made on the stump to the effect that regardless of the decision of the highest state tribunal he and his ticket will be placed upon the official ballot and will run independent of God's patent party. Jeffris is the man of the hour. Jeffris is more talked of than any other man. His telling address at Milwaukee last evening has stirred the state as it seldom has been stirred before. Jeffris of today is even greater. To Jeffris is given the credit for having held the wavering delegates together in a crucial moment and Jeffris today is looked upon as the true disciple of republicanism.

Even Betting
Betting on the decision of the supreme court is noticeable. Even money on the outcome is noted in several Madison places of business and it is reported that in Milwaukee several bets of two to one have been made by enthusiasts who see a victory for the republican ticket headed by Cook. Men who have stood high in party councils in the past openly assert in Madison that if the decision of the court is adverse to the governor his support in Dane county will be reduced over one-half and it does not need much of a reduction to mean that the governor cannot carry his home county. It is a strange thing that in a city the size of Madison there should be living two such men as Spooner and La Follette. They are enemies: they are lawyers; they are politicians. Their struggle for supremacy in the state is of long standing. It is nothing of new origin. Years ago they crossed each other's paths and the struggle will be carried on until one or the other is swept out of the path. Spooner has been carried on and up by the united will of the people and is now at the zenith of his glory. He is the trusted councillor of presidents and a man whose name and fame is not to be limited by the boundaries of his own state. La Follette is crafty and ambitious. He has staked his all on the die that shall either humble his enemy or raise him to exalted heights. It is a battle of the giants, of the two elements of the republican party—the conservative and the radical.

A Bit of History
Years ago both Spooner and La Follette were in congress—Spooner in the senate and La Follette in the house of representatives. Both men lost their offices in the great democratic landslide that swung Wisconsin into the democratic presidential column fourteen years ago. La Follette and Spooner returned to their homes in Wisconsin. Both were lawyers; both had abandoned their practice to enter congress. Spooner, more prosperous in the days before his elevation to the senatorial toga, had saved more money than the other. La Follette had spent everything to gain his position. La Follette was poor, desperately so and accepted assistance from his former competitor in the shape of several law suits that enabled him to lay the foundation of his present position. Two years later Spooner ran for governor against George W. Peck. La Follette was importuned to aid him and the republican cause on the stump but refused on the plea of press of business. Then after Spooner's defeat he began to lay his wiles for another gubernatorial campaign in which he was to be the candidate. His opportunity did not come in '96 or '98 but in 1900 he swept into the coveted seat on the wave of McKinley's popularity. Then he aspired for a senatorial toga and in 1902 he made a bitter fight against his former benefactor, Spooner. In this he was defeated by the will of the people and he was forced to content himself with continuing the fight against men who supported the cause. The last state convention showed to what ends he carried his hatred and his rule or ruin policy, and now the state is waiting for the supreme court to decide whether it shall be La Folletteism or republicanism which shall control the destinies of the state.

Circuit Court Commissioner Has Issued Writ of Habeas Corpus.

Joel B. LITERARY NOTE

The letters of John Ruskin to Charles Eliot Norton, which, with Mr. Norton's familiar, fine and careful editing, have been running through five numbers of the Atlantic, come to a conclusion in the September number. These letters, covering a space of nearly forty years, written to the most sympathetic of correspondents, are perhaps the most complete revelation of the mind and character of Ruskin that we have had outside of his collected works. It is particularly good to notice how through the dark period with which Ruskin's life closed, his mind clung to the dominant ideas of his teachings more firmly than some of his interpreters and biographers have led us to believe. Thus writing so late as 1855, he says at the end of a characteristic letter:—"I don't believe in any victory of materialism. The last two years have shown me more spiritually in the world than all my former life."

THE HEAVIEST WESTERN TEAM

THAT IS WHAT WISCONSIN WILL HAVE THIS YEAR.

WILL PLAY A KICKING GAME

Fourteen Men Weighing Over 200 Pounds Are Tying with Pig-Skin—Prospects Roseate.

(Special to The Gazette.)
Madison, Sept. 17.—Wisconsin on the gridiron this fall will adopt and play the kicking and block-kicking game. The university will have the heaviest football eleven of any of the middle western universities. These two facts were developed by the first week of the training of the university of Wisconsin football eleven under the direction of head coach, Arthur H. Curtis. A further fact of possibly greater significance was indicated, that there would be absent this fall the bickerings and disagreements among the coaching authorities that are said to have ruined the team last year.

Men From Far-West
Graduate Manager, C. H. Kilpatrick and assistant-coach Cochems have confided to friends that before the university opens the badger training squad will contain more than 14 men of 200 pounds weight and nearly 30 in all tip the scales at heavier than 190 pounds. These men come from the pine forests of northern Wisconsin. In small part, but the most important were secured from Utah and Colorado through the efforts of Harvey Holmes, a former Wisconsin star tackle and later coach at Ogden and Colorado Springs. The western men of whom some have already appeared and of whom there will be at least six, are experienced in football. The only light men who will have a chance for the Badger team are such phenomena as Walter Steffen, the crack quarterback from North Division, Chicago high school.

Trouble Last Year
Last year Coach Curtis and Asst. Coach Charles McCarthy had many almost daily disagreements regarding candidates and policy of play, and it is a saying at Madison that Orew Coach "Andy" O'Dea, trainer of the football candidates, held the balance of power, "broke the ties" between the coaches and in fact had more to say about the team than Head Coach Curtis himself. An example of this was in the matter of attempting to block kicks. Assistant coach McCarthy was insistent that the advantage gained every time an opponent's kick was blocked was so great as to demand that this kind of play be practiced. Coach Curtis was undetermined and Trainer O'Dea calculated to a mathematical exactness that the fastest runner could not sprint the 20 yards in two and a half seconds necessary to interfere with a kicker sending away the ball, that McCarthy was playing on chance and luck. The trainer had his way. Wisconsin's men made no attempt to block kicks until late in the season, after Eckersall of Chicago had booted his team to victory by sending three drop-kicks over the goal bar. This was seeming vindication for the assistant coach. Perhaps as a result of this experience it is announced at Madison that the trainer will not meddle with the coaching department this fall and that the kicking and block-kicking game will be played.

Coaches in Harmony
That the coaches will work in harmony this fall seems assured by the fact that Head Coach Curtis and Assistant Coach Cochems were teammates on the Wisconsin eleven for four years, that they are members of the same Greek letter fraternity, the Delta Upsilon, and that coach Curtis chose Cochems as his assistant. Their style of play is the same, while McCarthy, who was a former star on the Brown university eleven, played an eastern game, with which Curtis was not familiar.

Places on Eleven
There is much speculation regarding the personnel of the Wisconsin team this fall and the coaches are naturally reticent on this subject, declaring that not one place on the team will be determined for any game until the day on which each particular game on the schedule is to be played. However, some places on the eleven are as assured as can be humanly said. The members of last year's eleven to return will have their places unless Wisconsin's football history reverses itself. Captain Irving J. Bush will be back at his place at right end. Richard Remp will play center. Bertke, left guard and Findlay left tackle, unless Findlay be successful in his desire to occupy a back-field position for spectacular purposes perhaps. If Vanderboom, who was elected captain last January and who relinquished the place on account of failures in his classes, returns, and he says he will, he will play his position of left half back. Wrabetz, who played in all the big games of the schedule at least for part of the game, last fall, although classed as a substitute, is a likely man for right half, but still hardly be able to hold the place against heavier men, such as Ackner, De Lappe, Robinson and Kinney.

Steffen is Sure

Should Walter Steffen of Chicago remain, there is little doubt about it but what he will play quarterback, although Schreiber, Kuehnmetz and Jones are also after the place. At left end, Captain Abbott's position last year, Clark and T. Jones, last year substitutes are trying. Stromquest, who played under the coaching of Curtis in Kansas, leads the present squad for full-back. From the western heavy-weights will come timber for the vacant right guard and tackle position and they will also furnish fierce competition for even the old men who seek to retain their last advantage at present for left tackle. The outlook is particularly pleasing to the coaches.

TOBACCO CROP NOW HARVESTED

Reports of Buyers Looking for the New Crop Come From All Parts of the County.

"My tobacco crop is doing better than my corn," said a well-known farmer in our hearing this week. He went on to explain that under the delays of cool weather the tobacco was maturing more rapidly than corn and if frost would come within a week or ten days the injury would be vastly more to the corn than to tobacco remaining in the fields unharvested. This statement simply recalls the fact that in this latitude tobacco has the best of the argument in almost any kind of unseasonable weather conditions.

EDGERTON
There is rising being done especially in the Vernon county districts but the contracting for the new crop over the last few days, says the Edgerton Reporter. It is estimated that half the acreage in the western growing counties is already under contract, but elsewhere very little of the crop is sold—practically none in the southern section.

Local markets are experiencing more inquiry after cured leaf than for some time past and indications point to quite a revival of business. Out of town buyers are coming into the market and some fair-sized transactions are reported. Sampling of the '03 packings has commenced in a limited way but as yet only a little of these goods are offered. Sales from first hands coming to notice are:

Robert Peach, 32cs of '01 at 9.5 & 2c.

Madden Bros., 11cs '03 at 10c. The harvest of the week and cold weather has delayed maturing so that it is hard to predict that one-half the crop in the southern sections is yet under cover. Indications of frost have caused much uneasiness, but so far only fields on low grounds show any markings. Fully two weeks of good weather is needed to complete the harvest and place both corn and tobacco beyond danger.

The shipments out of storage reach 600cs from this market to all points for the past week.

JANESVILLE

After many weeks of quietness in leaf circles, this market received a magical change for the better during the past and present week, and by the appearance of matters now looks fair to continue so for some time to come. Out-of-town buyers, as well as local dealers, are beginning to move and many of the crops that have been contracted, and as the leaf has been standing is showing up in good form. It is doubtful if the most of it reaches the shed unsoiled. Most of the American men are not to be caught napping for they have been in this section for some time, and if the local men do not look to their laurels in short time they will find themselves short on the real good stuff.

Considerable sampling is and has been done of late and among those who have been engaged in this work were L. B. Carle & Son of lower grades and report on this of finding 25 per cent damage. They will commence on tops the first of the coming week.

At the Greene warehouse some 150 cases of the new was inspected, and report the goods coming along in fine shape, even beyond expectation. The same results are reported from S. Soverhill's place.

The sales for the past ten days have been quite numerous and have brought back old time memories. They are: T. A. Ryan and 55cs of 1902; R. L. Erler 75cs of 1901; Jos. Grundy 80cs of 1902; Fisher & Fisher 214cs of 1901-02; L. B. Carle & Son 175cs of 12cs of this lot sold during the week; S. B. Heddies 100cs of '02; The Fishers buy 55cs of 1901; Carle buy 100cs of 1902.

J. W. Barker, of J. W. & G. Barker Co. of Pittsburg; L. Well of L. Well & Co. New York; Wm. Spitzner of New York, and Joe Gullman of New York, were visitors here of late.

Mr. J. B. Dugas of St. Jacques, Quebec, and Pierre Dennis, of the Province of Quebec, Canada arrived in this city Tuesday morning. They are commissioners from that country and were sent here by their government for the purpose of gaining information on the culture of tobacco. They were early in the spring to watch the methods of the American grower in planting tobacco and return now in order to see how they harvest and cure the leaf.

Superior Telegram: The Duluth paper that looks after Wisconsin politics is more than usually a daisy in today's issue. In one of its mix-ups it mentions Senator Spooner as follows: "He was one of the La Follette delegates at large to the republican national convention." Wouldn't that make you see ghosts?

OLD FOGY IN A MELLOW MOOD

GROWS POET C OVER THE HEART OF JANESVILLE.

THE RICH MAN'S BURDEN

And the Outward Charms of a Fair City—But Returns to the Police at the Last.

To the Editor:
When one starts complaining it would seem that there is no end to the matters that should be called attention to. Janesville is by no means a model city but it is not a corrupt city. Its people are conservative and quiet and unassuming. They wear well on acquaintance. There is not a city in the country where strangers are held at arm's length longer before being taken to the bosom of friendship, but once in the hearts of citizens it is hard to wrest them away. Janesville has a warm spot in the heart of every former resident. They come back year after year to meet old friends and find as just the same. The other day a gentleman came from California to greet old friends and find just the same as when he left ten years ago. It is a good trait of Janesville and one which could be practiced more. Never forget a friend.

Revolutionary
There are men in the city who are revolutionary in their ideas and opinions. They want to see things go with a buzz and a hum. But strange to say these men are willing only to contribute the talk of the affair and refuse the necessary financial aid to promote industries. They have that men who have made their money by hard, shrewd efforts and toll should bear the brunt of the burden of contributing and that they should reap the benefits. Such men are found in every community, but particularly in our city. Then too, the sentiment of the men who have money is divided and not unified in the one idea of progress for the city. "Better Janesville" should be the motto. It should not be forgotten in the rush of progress. Two men working together on a piece of work can do more than two men working in opposition to each other. Let us all work together, not at odds.

More Delay
There seems to be a spirit of delay in forming a new set of rules for the police department or in reorganizing this department. It is always a good thing to go slow and do what you do well, but it is not always well to delay until the horse is stolen before locking the barn door. "Do it Now" is the motto sent out by an enterprising firm which greases one's eyes in almost every magazine where their advertisement is used. It is a good motto and one which could be followed to good advantage by the council in their dealings with this matter. There should be no more delays. Delays are dangerous and the influence of procrastination upon police matters will affect other city matters as well in time. The council passes ordinances and they remain dead-letter. There is no attempt to enforce them and the fact remains clear that there never will be while the present force is composed of so few men that they cannot do their duty as it should be done.

Advertise The City
What Janesville needs is a thorough advertising of its charms and advantages. The country at large is always glad to learn of the progress of an enterprising community. Janesville is filled with hustling business men who go quietly about their daily work without any pomp or show—whose names could be used before the world at large to show what could be done by enterprising men; if they tried, with the advantages of such a city as Janesville to work in conjunction with. Advertise the city and let the world know what a growing, prosperous community we are.

A Solemn Duty.

A solemn duty which we owe society, our children and ourselves is that nothing which can be done to assist nature at that time when our wives are to become mothers should be left undone. Of all the countless details to be observed at such a time, no single one is of more importance than the bodily welfare of the expectant mother; she must not experience undue suffering through any lack of effort on our part.

MOTHER'S FRIEND

should be the recourse of all real men and women at such times; it is easily obtainable, and it is a positive crime not to procure it. Its offices are to relax the muscles and tissues intimately associated in this great act of the Creator's phenomena, and by simple external applications a result is obtained which at the appointed time permits the mother to undergo her greatest joy with fortitude, and bring into the world a child worthy of its parents. $1.00, all druggists. Coming Attractions.

"Under Southern Skies." Justly popular with Janesville people last season returns to the Myers theatre this evening. This delightful play is now in its third season of undiminished popularity and is conceded to be the very best play of southern life which has been presented to the public in many years. So much life, fun and gaiety is interwoven with the strong and peculiarly Southern new outfit of beautiful scenery is used for the play this season and new costumes are worn. A fine company of players has been selected for their special fitness for the various roles.

At Theatre Monday
The advent of leaders lush, recognized as one of the cleverest comedies on the stage, will be one of the pleasant events of the present story which forms the basis of the play that the interest of the spectator is never allowed to flag. This is undoubtedly one of the secrets of the great success achieved by the play. Every effort is also made by the management to keep up the standard of the attraction from season to season. Every performance is as thoroughly and carefully given as theatrical season. She will be seen as "Glittering Gloria" in the clever comedy of that name, which was one of the most successful pieces ever presented at Daly's theatre, London. The play tells a most amusing story, and its many complicated situations cause no end of laughter, the dialogue being exceptionally bright and the characters the most natural was its first presentation before a metropolitan audience. Nothing is so slighted that can add to the enjoyment or satisfaction of the audience, and this is another reason why large houses greet the play again and again as often as it returns to the various cities visited. An entirely and interesting types, which can be well understood as the author is Hugh Morton, who is also responsible for "The Belle of New York." The sale of seats opens Monday at 9 a. m. The attraction is here Monday evening.

"GLITTERING GLORIA" HERE MONDAY

...Forty Years Ago...

Janesville Daily Gazette, Saturday, September, 17, 1864. Rev. Mr. Buchanan will occupy the pulpit of the Presbyterian church tomorrow morning and evening.

Special Meeting.—There will be a special meeting of the Water Works this evening at 7:30 o'clock. A. D. Stoddard, Clerk.

Circuit Court.—A number of cases have been argued before this court; the decisions on some of which have not yet been rendered. We are not aware how many cases still remain on the calendar.

Personal.—Col. Gill, of Watertown, formerly of the 20th Wisconsin regiment, was in the city today. He says that with one or two more victories, the Union men in Jefferson county could carry their tickets.

Coming to the Fair.—We understand that the people of Fond du Lac have made arrangements to visit Janesville during the state fair, which is held here on the 27th, 28th, 29th and 30th inst.

Superior Flour.—Messrs. Payne & Leavitt at the Store Mill at Monterey are making a splendid article of flour from Iowa and choice Wisconsin wheat. For excellence in quality it is hard to beat, as we have tried it, and therefore know.

Battery Boys Captured.—A letter from Altoona, Ga., received in this city states that the following members of the Twelfth Wisconsin battery were gobbled up by rebel cavalry seven miles from camp on the 2nd inst. James Drapfield, John Dawlton, Davy of Janesville; Slosson, who lived near the city, and Andrew Watts, of Afton, and Peter Cronius of Berlin. They have probably been sent to the rebels to their prison at Americus, Ga.

Going to Chicago.—Among a number of our citizens who have recently left us to make Chicago their place of residence is Mr. Nat. Clark of the firm of Orent & Clark. We regret to lose him as he is a man of much worth, and has excellent business capabilities. If success does not attend him, then merit does not attain it.

The Hundred Day Men.—The sick of the one day regiment at last accounts still remain in Chicago, owing to the difficulty of providing for them in the state. It is understood that 40 can be received in the hospital in Milwaukee and an equal number at Madison. If the remainder are not too sick to remain in the barracks they will come home otherwise go to Keokuk, Ia.

GALLE 1
OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.
The man who never knows defeat or failure, except to profit by the experience, is the man who gets to the front, and the man who never suffers defeat is seldom more than half developed.

Two young men met the other day after several years of separation. They had started out together, before completing a high school course, to seek fortune in the busy outside world. One of them aspired to be an engineer, and after passing an examination, secured a position as night fireman on a switch engine. The work was hard and disagreeable but he was made of the right material and in time he was advanced to a regular run on a freight engine. Here faithful, intelligent service was recognized and he worked his way to the front until he enjoyed the reputation of being one of the best firemen on the road.

He absorbed all the knowledge that came in his way, and long before promotion came he was qualified to handle an engine. For a year he has occupied a seat on the right side of the cab of the Overland Limited, and the conductors say, "When Johnnie is at the throttle there is no occasion to worry about time, for he always gets there."

Ten years in the school of experience transformed the boy into a well developed man and finds him at the head of the profession with a good income, a comfortable bank account, and bright prospects for the future.

His companion entered mercantile life, and his first position was package boy in a general store. The pay was small and the work a drudgery, but time put him behind the counter and opened an opportunity for advancement. He proved to be an indifferent salesman, and not the most attentive to business, and after five years a ten dollar salary was all that he could command.

Discouraged, and somewhat disheartened, he sought other employment, but soon discovered that competition was sharp, and that inexperienced men were not in demand. Then commenced a life of drifting, and another five years found him without a dollar, without a position, and destitute of knowledge which could be turned to practical account. The men had been chums in boy-hood and as they renewed old acquaintance they found much to discuss in common.

John told his experiences and said he believed success had come to him because he had gone into life with a single purpose and that was to make of himself as good an engineer as there was on the road, and then he added "I got there in spite of difficulties." Tom said, "Well I started out to be a merchant and here I am with nothing to show for it but an empty head and a bankrupt pocket-book. I had hopes and aspirations but they have been blasted and for the past five years I have knocked about barely making a living. Perhaps you can suggest why I failed but I can't, for I have tried almost everything in the line."

John looked him over with some curiosity and then he said in a voice that expressed sympathy, "Well old man, I think I know where you have made two serious mistakes. In the first place you set your stake too high, and spent too much time among the stars, building air-castles. It is all well enough for a boy to want to be a merchant, but there are several landings that must be successfully reached before his ambitions may be realized.

"I don't know much about merchandising but observation leads me to believe that before a man can be a merchant he must know all about goods and how to buy them, all about men and how to handle them, all about people and how to deal with them.

"You expected to reach the summit at a single bound and of course you failed, and then your second weakness developed. You became discouraged, and for the past five years you have gone around with your eyes on the ground. If an opportunity came your way, you didn't grasp it, for you couldn't see it.

"There is only one way for a man to look for success and that is straight ahead. With his eyes fixed steadily on the goal, and a fixed determination in his heart to win, my word for it, the prize is assured."

The young engineer had discovered two important secrets, and they are worthy of thoughtful consideration by young men who are just strutting out for themselves.

The mother is largely responsible for the notion that her boy is the brightest boy in the neighborhood, and that his chances are good for the Presidential chair.

In her admiration she forgets that the pathway to this high office is lined with wrecks of the brightest minds that the nation has ever produced.

Don't start out at twenty with a presidential bee in your hat. The noise will disturb you, and may end in a successful career.

It is about as useless for the average boy to imagine that nature has endowed him with peculiar gifts that make a Rockefeller, a Morgan, a Vanderbilt, a Marshall Field, and scores of men of this class who have won distinction because of peculiar ability.

Aim high, but keep your feet on the ground and don't overshoot the mark. When opportunity presents, grasp it, and make it the stepping stone for advancement.

There are successful men in every community who have come to the front through persistent work prompted by ambition. Their names will never be known beyond the local field where their lot is cast. If the secret of their success is discovered it will be found that good fortune came to them as the result of a fixed purpose in life, and with eyes on the goal which was always straight ahead and neither too high nor too low they have steadily advanced until the prize was won.

There is a larger class of boys who make a failure of life by neither looking up nor ahead. It is so much easier to look down and drift with the tide, that the current is always crowded with young men who are destitute of ambition, and whose only thought is for the present.

The statement is frequently made, that the average girl leads a butterfly existence. It is equally true of a large class of boys. The towns and cities are full of them, and the country has its full quota.

The young men of America would be benefited by some of the hardships and privations experienced by the fathers. Life means more than a holiday and there are too many boys who drift into it with no notion of care or responsibility.

Better to be a good engineer than a poor business man, and infinitely better to be a good anything than a mere dabbler.

There is a niche in life for everybody and it lies along the pathway that is straight ahead. A purpose and determination to find it is always rewarded. And it is always large enough for the occupant.

SHE PLAYED THE DEUCE
"What's trumps?"
"Oh yes, hearts."
"And you led that ace of diamonds?"
"Yes."
"Well I'll trump it anyway."
And so she played the deuce by trumping a suit that controlled every other trick.
Yet women wonder why they can't vote.

recognizing the National Convention as the highest tribunal of the party.

The Governor's Milwaukee organ reads out of the party every man who does not bow submissively to the will of the dictator. The men who recently pledged allegiance to the party through a letter to the national committee are classed as bolters.

Twenty men who were delegates to the La Follette state convention have signed a letter stating that they will be loyal to the findings of the republican national convention unless the Supreme court reverses the ruling. Yet the Milwaukee organ calls these men bolters.

If Congressman Babcock is not a Republican, what party does he belong to? His loyalty has never been questioned until the Governor raised the issue, and he is not good authority this year.

The action of Hon. S. A. Cook in declaring his intention to be loyal to the decision of the supreme court is generally endorsed by the better element of the party throughout the state.

Every man should have two homes. One at his fireside, and the other in the church, and he should be loyal to both.

There will be several vacant chairs at the state house after the first of January, beside the one recently occupied by State Treasurer Kempf.

The Supreme court decision will determine whether La Follettism or Republicanism will control the state.

There's plenty of room at the top, but you have to climb to get there.

The day of rest should be a day of clean and wholesome enjoyment.

Attend church tomorrow.

PRESS COMMENT.

Oshkosh Northwestern: Regret over the passing of summer is somewhat tempered by the thought that griddle cakes and syrup will soon be on the bill of fare again.

Milwaukee Sentinel: So far as the legitimate duties of the executive office are concerned, Gov. La Follette could have declared the office of governor vacant at any time during the last four years.

Wausau Record: The Milwaukee Journal swallows Grotophorist of Baraboo with about the same kind of enthusiasm that a boy hollers for a castor oil.

Chicago Record-Herald: Out of pure benevolence the German government wants to increase the size of the standing army so that 30,000 or 40,000 more young men a year can be trained.

Chicago News: Where the feathers of vanity fly there is always a good mark for the gun, but never enough bird to pay for the shot.

'Green Bay Gazette: It's the same old story. Every saloon in Chippewa Falls was closed last Sunday and on Monday morning the number of drunks arraigned in court broke the record for the season.

Growth of European Population.
Few persons have any idea of the extraordinary manner in which the population of Europe has increased during the last century. According to statisticians this population has more than doubled itself from 1850 to 1900. To this increase the Latin nations of the west and southwest contributed the least and the greatest growth was in the east, where the people have not yet become thoroughly saturated with the ideas of modern civilization.

THE OHIO GASOLINE ENGINE

(Formerly sold by E. L. Gates as the Columbia)

Is the simplest, most durable and economical engine on the market. Read what Knox & Hazen have to say about the Ohio:

Janesville, Wis., Sept. 10, 1904.

BICKNELL HDW. CO., CITY:
Gentlemen—The 6 h. p. Ohio Engine purchased of you last December is giving the best of satisfaction. Up to the present time it has cost us only $2.85 for gasoline. During July and August we ran 12 hours per day and altogether the engine has run equal to 6 months, 9 hours per day. We can run 3 machines at a time that usually require 2 to 3 h. p. each, together with the line and counter shafting. Nearly all of our machines run at a speed of 2000 to 4000 revolutions per minute and require good steady power and plenty of it, which we certainly have. We can cheerfully recommend the Ohio Engine to any one wanting reliable and economical power.
Yours truly, KNOX & HAZEN.

The Ohio Gasoline Engines are made in sizes from 4 to 40 h. p. and for farm, factory and shop use are acknowledged to be the leading engines on the market. In a fuel test of 22 of the leading gasoline engines the Ohio consumed the least gasoline.

SOCIETY.

There is every prospect of a lively autumn in affairs social. The ladies' literary clubs are already preparing their programs and assigning to their members topics which will require long hours of pleasant research among forgotten volumes, which await them at the library. Committees of the men's clubs are on a still hunt for ideas which shall call forth the best efforts of their thinkers and orators. "Seances with science and the various 'isms'; great political battles; little journeys into the realms of art and literature; investigations of city affairs and the commercial welfare of Janesville and the state, all conducted without prejudice within the sheltering walls of the Young Men's Christian association building, constitute a general description of what the winter has in store for them. The difficulty is to particularize and avoid repetition of last year's interesting programs. The highest club committee will meet early next week to discuss matters and the Social Union club will soon commence work on the fall plans. Should you, poor mortal who have not learned that "Profanity" is a "hole" in the southwest corner of a broad area of smiling hills and dales just beyond the city gates, inquire as to when the golf season ends, the enthusiast will eye you contemptuously, replying that "it is only just beginning and has no end." When you have subscribed to the creed—"Golf is a great game"—play it! Only the porch athletes flee when the leaves begin to turn, while those who are true to the faith remain to brave the bleak winds, secretly glad that the backsliders are gone. Not far from the road that turns off the main traveled thoroughfare to the links is a path which trails down to a sandy beach on the river banks. It is there that the corn-roast parties are assembling on these starry nights when there is just enough keenness in the air to make the roaring bonfire welcome. These, too, feel an infinite pity for the ones who are content to remain indoors and spend the precious hours of waning summer with the quiet puzzles in pasteboard. Nevertheless the devotees of the various card games have already organized for the winter campaign and sad, neglected husbands are meekly inquiring if something useful in the line of cook-stoves or table bric-a-brac can't be put up as prizes this season. Before long, now, strains of music, floating from the high windows of the dance halls, will lure the midnight teller from his task. All will soon do homage to the man of the fiddle and the bow. The past week has not been wasted. Several teas and picnics were given towards the close and there are prospects of more activity next week. Rumors of one engagement are flying thick and fast and seem to be confirmed, though not officially.

From over the sea, apparently by the Marconi route but in reality through the good offices of the plot, comes word of the two young Janesville bachelors who sailed Wednesday, Sept. 7, for a tour of Europe. The young men left on the "Belgrave" for Hamburg and should have arrived by this time. Stanley D. Tallman, writing to friends, relates a harrowing experience that will baffle medical science. Arriving in New York on the Tuesday preceding he went on board the boat with his companion, Dr. G. W. Fifield, and decided to spend the night there in order to become accustomed to life on the bounding wave before the bounding commenced. Strange to relate, with the big liner still tied to the wharf, he became violently ill with sea-sickness and was still feeling badly in the morning when the boat passed from the harbor into the open and the good pilot took his departure.

Mrs. G. W. Skelly entertained about sixty ladies at her Milwaukee avenue home yesterday at a six o'clock tea given for her sisters, the Misses Maude, Grace, and Ruth Hardee of Rock Lodge, Florida. The pleasant home was tastefully decorated with smilax, ferns, and cut flowers and the dinner was served in three courses.

An edict has been issued that the Rusk Lyceum society will be permitted to give but five dances this season, some people objecting to the high school lending its countenance to so many social frivolities during the past year. Eighty couples attended the opening entertainment of the series last evening. The affair was given in Central hall and Smith & Knoff's orchestra provided the music. George Cahow and Walter Carle were the committeemen in charge.

At the Shinnelippi links next Tuesday afternoon the first round of play for the Fifield trophy will be enjoyed, weather permitting. The concert of the Concordia Singing society which had to be postponed this week will probably be given at that time.

A Missionary tea will be given Tuesday evening by the Loam band of the First Congregational church. An interesting program of music and readings is being prepared.

At the golf links this afternoon twelve young ladies are enjoying a game of six-handed euchre and a picnic supper.

Most of Janesville's "Hay Fever club" have returned from their summer wanderings. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jackson were expected home from Mackinac Island today.

With Mrs. Charles Fifield today the Ladies' Afternoon Duplicate Whist club is meeting for the first time this year. Weekly games will be held henceforth at the homes of the various members.

Miss Sue Wilcox entertained the Grand club yesterday afternoon. Grand is a comparatively new name of cards, not unlike whist in many respects.

Next Monday the preliminary meeting of the Twenty-first Century History class will be held.

Miss Minnie Ryan of Whitewater is visiting friends and relatives in the city.

Lieut.-Com. Frank Bostwick and wife arrived in the city last evening, and are the guests of Lieut. Bostwick's father, J. M. Bostwick, and friends during their visit in the city.

Mr. and Mrs. George Kimball have gone to Atlantic City, N. J., where it is hoped that the ocean breezes will benefit Mrs. Kimball's health.

L. D. Carle and daughter, Miss Josephine, have returned from a two weeks' outing at Star Lake, Wis.

At the residence of J. T. Henderson last evening fifty young people of the Presbyterian church gathered to enjoy the program of the social as mapped out by Miss Elizabeth Gravellyn. Some clever schemes of enjoyment were introduced.

Over fifty young people, responding to the invitation extended to all, enjoyed the monthly entertainment of the Lutheran league of the English Lutheran church, given at the league rooms last evening. An interesting program was rendered followed by games and the serving of choice refreshments.

Miss Marguerite Samuels returned to her home in Burlington this morning after a short visit with Miss Lucy Fox and Miss Grace Winterboth in this city.

Miss Ethel Smith visited in Milton yesterday.

Mrs. J. H. Nicholson and Mrs. Frank Nicholson spent yesterday at the Elkhorn fair.

Mrs. Anderson and daughter, Irene, are expected home today after a two weeks' visit in Lake Mills.

Edward Hayward of Chicago is expected in the city today to visit old friends over Sunday.

Mrs. James Sutherland will entertain a party of friends at the golf links next week Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Wheeler are now nicely established in their new home at 103 Sincclair street.

Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Whaley and sons, Carroll and Milton, arrived in the city today to visit the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Whaley, 168 Prairie avenue.

Richard Barry and Miss Lou Barry left this morning to visit with the former's daughter, Mrs. G. A. Breaker.

WHEN THE BRIDE WEARS A TRAVELING GOWN

When the bride wears a traveling gown in place of the traditional white silk or satin, then the bridesmaids follow suit. The green and white checks in the fine silkenness look like silk, and when touched up with velvet ribbons are dainty enough for any occasion. The blouse bodice has the ribbons applied in an original design, and the sleeve of the check comes only to the elbow, where it is met with a tight under sleeve of fine lace-trimmed muslin. The skirt is double, the upper one pleated to fit snugly over the hips, graduated widths of the ribbon making a trimming above the hem, and the lower skirt follows the very same lines, a broader velvet being employed here. The material is sheer and silky, and in place of the usual turned-up hem there is a facing of velvet employed that adds a firmness at the foot and accords well with the velvet trimming.

Mr. Samuel Griffin of 203 Locust St. Journeyman carpenter says: "I had a severe attack of La Grippe and as a result weakness of the kidneys set in. The secretions from those organs were greatly disordered, annoyed me much at night and I seemed to have limited control of them. HIGH CLASS DRUGGISTS AND — OTHERS.

The better class of druggists, everywhere, are men of scientific attainments and high integrity, who devote their lives to the welfare of their fellow men in supplying the best of remedies and purest medicinal agents of known value, in accordance with physicians' prescriptions and scientific formula. Druggists of the better class manufacture many excellent remedies, but always under original or official names and they never sell false brands, or imitation medicines. They are the men to deal with when in need of anything in their line, which usually includes all standard remedies and corresponding adjuncts of a first-class pharmacy and the finest and best of toilet articles and preparations and many useful accessories and remedial appliances. The earning of a fair living, with the satisfaction which arises from a knowledge of the benefits conferred upon their patrons and assistance to the medical profession, is usually their greatest reward for long years of study and many hours of daily toil. They all know that Syrup of Figs is an excellent laxative remedy and that it gives universal satisfaction, and therefore they are selling many millions of bottles annually to the well informed purchasers of the choicest remedies, and they always take pleasure in handing out the genuine article bearing the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—printed on the front of every package. They know that in cases of colds and headaches attended by biliousness and constipation, or weakness or torpidity of the liver and bowels, arising from irregular habits, indigestion, or over-eating, that there is no other remedy so pleasant, prompt and beneficial in its effects as Syrup of Figs, and they are glad to sell it because it gives universal satisfaction.

Owing to the excellence of Syrup of Figs, the universal satisfaction which it gives and the immense demand for it, imitations have been made, tried and condemned, but there are individual druggists to be found, here and there, who do not maintain the dignity and principles of the profession and whose greed gets the better of their judgment, and who do not hesitate to recommend and try to sell the imitations in order to make a larger profit. Such preparations sometimes have the name—"Syrup of Figs"—or "Fig Syrup"—and of some piratical concern, or fictitious fig syrup company, printed on the package, but they never have the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—printed on the front of the package. The imitations should be rejected because they are injurious to the system. In order to sell the imitations they find it necessary to resort to misrepresentation or deception, and whenever a dealer passes off on a customer a preparation under the name of "Syrup of Figs" or "Fig Syrup," which does not bear the full name of the California Fig Syrup Co. printed on the front of the package, he is attempting to deceive and mislead the patron who has been so unfortunate as to enter his establishment, whether it be large or small, for if the dealer resorts to misrepresentation and deception in one case he will do so with other medicinal agents, and in the filling of physicians' prescriptions, and should be avoided by every one who values health and happiness. Knowing that the great majority of druggists are reliable, we supply the immense demand for our excellent remedy entirely through the druggists, of whom it may be purchased everywhere, in original packages only, at the regular price of fifty cents per bottle, but as exceptions exist it is necessary to inform the public of the facts, in order that all may decline or return any imitation which may be sold to them. If it does not bear the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—printed on the front of every package, do not hesitate to return the article and to demand the return of your money, and in future go to one of the better class of druggists who will sell you what you wish and the best of everything in his line at reasonable prices.

LITTLE FRANCE

A ROMANCE OF THE DAYS WHEN "THE GREAT LORD HAWKE" WAS KING OF THE SEA

BY CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

Author of "Commodore Paul Jones," "Reuben James," "For the Freedom of the Sea," etc.

Copyright, 1901, by H. Appleton & Co., New York.

He took a step nearer. It was painfully still within the room. Perhaps she heard the beating of his heart, for she slowly turned her head and stared at him. He stood before her eyes as if rooted to the spot.

"Phillip," she murmured softly, "doubting her senses, 'Is it a dream? Am I a child again, that you stand here in the old room, in the old tower where first you loved me, where first your lips met mine?' Phillip!"

She rose to her feet and turned toward him. He could not move, she fascinated him. "Phillip!" she cried again, her voice rising in joy and fervor mingled, "Is it indeed you? I left you in Quebec. How came you here?" She tottered toward him in lovely bewilderment, but her strength had been so sorely taxed that it now gave way—she swayed unsteadily and would have fallen. Another step took him to her side. He clasped her to his breast, strained her to his heart so tightly that he hurt her as he covered her surprised face with kisses. She sank into his arms. Her head fell upon his shoulder. He felt the sinuous, supple yield of her slender body as her hands met around his neck. For the moment neither spoke. Presently he turned her lovely face up to his own again. He looked into her eyes once more. Not the blackness of the night outside the dark tower was so deep and full as they.

"O Phillip!" she whispered, returning kisses for kisses. "You have come back to me. Thank God, you have come back to me!"

"Yet you left me in America, Anne. You left me without a word! How could you?"

"My letter? Did you not receive it?"

"Ay, but not a word from your lips. You left me alone, ill, helpless. But there—I will not reproach you. I followed you; I would have followed you to the end of the earth. Did you not know it? Did you not dream that I should be here?"

She nodded her head.

"I looked for you, I waited for you, I knew you would come, my own!" she murmured, laying her cheek upon his shoulder again with a long sigh of utter content.

He was here, he was hers, she was his, he held her close in his strong arms—what more? His clasp was so tight, he crushed her so against his breast, that the diamond cross she wore was pressed deep into her tender bosom. What mattered it? The pain was sweet to her, 'twas love's brand. He would never release her now. She was his only. The weary days of waiting, the long voyage over the stormy seas, the plans of her grandfather, the hopes of de Vitre—they were forgotten. Honor, faith, obedience—he had conquered.

"Yours, yours only, Phillip, my darling—yours, yours, yours only," she murmured again and again as she felt his beating heart. It was so restful in his arms she surrendered herself to him in passionate devotion. She nestled against him as a child, who was seeking peace and longing for a haven, might have done.

"But how came you here, Phillip?" she asked at last, withdrawing from his arms a space that she might look at him.

How handsome he was, how like a king!

"Do you not remember that night in the tower, my own?"

"Have I ever forgotten it? There you kissed away the child, and from that moment I loved you. 'Twas for that reason I bade them make my room here."

"You recall the story of Baron de Croisic, sweet—how we wondered if one could climb the wall?"

"Yes, yes, and you said, given a sufficient—what was the word, Phillip?"

"Incentive, sweet Anne, and with you at the top I could have climbed to heaven."

"O Phillip!" she shuddered, "and did you come up that awful wall this dark night? How could you do it?"

"Love lent me wings. I saw you at the top! I pictured this moment, 'Twas hope and a light heart that lifted me up, my darling."

"And if you had fallen?"

"Then you would have been troubled no longer, Little France."

"I should have laid my body beside yours, Phillip, at the foot of the tower wall," she cried, trembling and pressing him to her heart once more.

his hand. Is this the fidelity of a de Rohan? Your hand is promised, you were not free. He shall not have you. You are mine by every right!"

"Stop, Monsieur de Vitre! My word is—yours, and I had honestly meant to keep it, but do you not recall that in the hall of the Chateau St. Louis I told you when I first permitted you to consider yourself engaged to me that it all depended upon the marriage; a declaration, sir, that I repeated in my own house in Quebec, when you were released from confinement, that I have said over and over again to you in the ship? He would not hear of it, sir, even when we breached the subject tentatively. 'Tis impossible. And there is one right, sir, that you never had."

"And what is that, pray?"

"I do not love you, sir, nor did I ever pretend to do so."

"Do you love this de Kersaint, then, mademoiselle?" cried the Frenchman furiously.

"Monsieur, you have no right to question me."

"Right? Are you not my promised wife? But I remember you told me you loved no gentleman of France. Is there any one else? You blush, mademoiselle. That Englishman? What a blind fool I have been. But he has no more chance than I. De Kersaint takes the prize. Did you plight Capt. Grafton your troth, too? And I can not resent it. I can not kill him. I owe him too much—life, honor, I was going to add—you. You!" She shivered under the scorn in his voice.

"But I pity him, too," he went on. "He depends on your love, and I on your honor. The love of a traitress, the honor of the Rohans, mademoiselle!"

He laughed bitterly in a way not good to hear. Suddenly his glance fell upon the table by the window. There was something there. He stopped as if petrified with astonishment.

"What's that?" he cried.

"Sir!" said Anne, furious with indignation, and yet, in her heart, a certain pity for this unfortunate lover, as he made a sudden dart past her. "How dare you? Retire from my apartments, or—"

"I came in alone, mademoiselle, but I shall go out with the wearer of this," he exclaimed fiercely, lifting a hat from the table. "Whose head fits this chaparran, I wonder—the marquis? De Kersaint's? Ha, 'tis laced—a naval hat! An English hat, mademoiselle. Who is here?"

"Grafton," murmured Anne in surprise, taken off her guard.

"He is here, then?" he cried jealously. "Where is he? Mon Dieu, in that room, your chamber? Stand aside, mademoiselle. Let me pass!"

"Never!" answered the girl resolutely. "You presume too much, sir, upon my forbearance. Leave my room instantly!"

Another second and Grafton had broken forth; a new sound checked him, however, some one else was coming. He listened once more.

Newbro's Herpicide

THE ORIGINAL REMEDY THAT "KILLS THE DANDRUFF GERM."

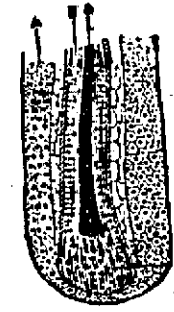

SCHOOL CHILDREN.
Every school child should know that baldness is a contagious disease, caused by a microbe. Prof. J. Na, of Hamburg, Germany, discovered that "dandruff, itching scalp, falling hair, and final baldness are produced by a germ or microbe that passes from one head to another, where it burrows into the scalp and by multiplying and extending deeper and deeper into the hair follicles saps the life of the hair root and produces baldness."

IT TAKES YEARS
to produce complete baldness, for the action of the dandruff microbe is not constant in every case. It is governed by predisposition, by the state of health, by environment, but particularly by the endeavor made to combat the growth and development of the dandruff microbes, which can only be destroyed with Newbro's Herpicide.

This new antiseptic scalp germicide is past the experimental stage. It was made to destroy the germ that causes dandruff and falling hair, and by coaxing energy back into the impoverished bulbs, it enables the hair to grow naturally, and luxuriantly. Thousands of letters from physicians, clergymen and laymen tell the same story of its wonderful success.

AN IDEAL HAIR DRESSING.
It is fortunate for those who understand the new rules for scalp cleanliness that the antiseptic qualities of Newbro's Herpicide make it the most delightful and refreshing hair dressing imaginable. Chronic baldness is incurable; save your hair, while you have hair, to save.

TWO PROMINENT PHYSICIANS TESTIFY AS FOLLOWS:
"I tested several bottles of your Newbro's Herpicide in extreme cases of dandruff and the results were very satisfactory."
(Signed) N. A. Gerring, M. D., Denton Harbor, Mich.
"I was troubled very much with dandruff. Since using Herpicide once or twice a week, I am no longer troubled with dandruff and the irritable scalp which was so annoying has also disappeared."

JEFFERIS TEARS MASK FROM LA FOLLETTISM

and it took up all of the facts. We argued that case before the national committee from 11 o'clock in the forenoon until 5 o'clock in the afternoon, with only an intermission of about thirty minutes for lunch. In other words, that national committee heard those facts for about six hours. The national committee consisted of fifty men substantially appointed from all over the United States. Yes, you might say from all over the world, because Alaska had a representative, Porto Rico had a representative, the Philippine Islands had a representative, and the Hawaiian Islands had a representative, and one from each state. Those men were appointed four years ago without any reference to Wisconsin. They heard all of the testimony—have you got a record, Mr. Golding? Let me see it for a minute. (Referring to a large printed volume.) There is only part of it. They went through that entire record, consisting of 240 or more pages; and the other side presented their proofs. We hear now that the facts were all disputed. There were a great many things that were not disputed.

National Party Against
"The committee, after hearing the facts, decided that Gov. La Follette's convention had violated the rules of republicanism. They decided that the opera house convention had a majority of the delegates duly elected and duly credentialled. They decided, in other words, that our convention was the only republican convention held in the state of Wisconsin this year (applause)."

"Oh, then immediately the cry went out, 'They are frauds, they have been bought up; they are corrupt.' It is a curious thing that any man who ever differed with La Follette has always been corrupt (applause)."

"I want to call your attention here to a few things to show the republicanism of the La Folletteites. Take their leading paper, published here in the city of Milwaukee. They say, because we have differed with Gov. La Follette, politically—and I will tell you why in a minute—that we are a gang of treacherous political cut-throats and assassins, who have been fighting him for the last four years."

"A gang of political cut-throats and assassins." Do they look it (waving his hand toward the vice president seated upon the stage)? (Cries of "No," "no.")

"Men that have held in their hand the honor of the state of Wisconsin for fifty years and yet a gang of political cut-throats and assassins."

Governor's Roll of Dishonor
"Why, the governor of this state is going up and down the state reading what he calls his roll of dishonor; reading the names of a number of senators who did not happen to vote—upon one question, as I am going to show you soon—as he wanted them to vote; and because they differed with him politically upon that question, he said this roll of dishonor, and the men thereon, ought to be tagged and marked for life; they ought to be branded. He calls that republicanism in the great state of Wisconsin! Are we slaves or are we free men?"

(A voice—"Free men.")
"Are we going to stand this year in and year out?"

(Cries of "No," "No.")
"No, sir, the state of Wisconsin will some time arise. It has been a difficult problem. An internal fight in the party of that kind is a difficult problem to handle, but I want to say to you the stalwarts of Wisconsin no longer recognize R. M. La Follette as a republican, or having a place in the party."

Continuing, the speaker reviewed La Follette's conference with railway presidents in Chicago in 1900 and his written agreement to be favorable to their interests if they would support him. The history of railroad taxation of the past decade, the violation of the tax law, the selling of a place on the ticket, the big increase in state expenses, the same warden system of politics, the fees exacted for the campaign fund, the un-American primary law, were all exposed in detail and no man left the hall during these searching inquiries and convincing revelations.

IOWA BANK PRESIDENT ARRESTED IN CHICAGO

Woodbury County Financier Loser Heavily Through Speculation on the Board of Trade.

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 17.—With four teen charges of embezzlement, for gery, and "false banking" placed against him, and aggregating more than $112,000, and said by the police to have practically admitted his guilt Fred H. Cutting, until two years ago president of the Oto Savings bank, Oto, Woodbury county, Iowa, was arrested on a warrant and taken to his home town in custody of Sheriff Charles W. Jackson, Sioux City, Iowa.

He has been a resident of Chicago since the failure of the bank, two years ago. Although indictments were piled against him, he escaped arrest. Detectives Zimmer and Gleason found him in the offices of the New York Life Insurance company. He readily accompanied them.

"It was while Cutting was acting as president of the western savings institution that he was able to divert and appropriate funds, he told the police. Thousands of dollars were appropriated, and, it is alleged, when he had misused and wildly speculated with the institution's funds, falling at every turn, he fled the town.
"I got in wrong," he said, "and when I saw the play going against me I plunged even deeper."
